Windfall rejected

Mayor says £15k a year for community will not compensate for turbine 'blight'

CONTROVERSIAL plans to build a wind turbine on farmland outside Haverhill have taken a further twist.

In talks with Haverhill Town Council, applicant James Sills revealed that if the proposal is passed £15,000 will be given back to the community for every year the 78m turbine, to be built at Nosterfield End, is operational.

This information was not part of the original application submitted to St Edmundsbury Borough Council, but Mr Sills chose to reveal it to prove the turbine would benefit the wider community.

He said: "The reason for making this intention public at that stage was the felt need to correct comments made by town councillors who said that the local area would benefit little from the project."

"My family has farmed near to Haverhill for several generations; it is important to me that farming continues to clearly link with and benefit our shared local area."

Town councillors agreed with a statement made by county councillor Julian Flood in their objection, in which he said the turbine would have a negative impact on the town.

Their own objections, which were submitted in August, included worries about noise, visual impact and the effect the turbine could have on nearby Grade II listed buildings. These were upheld in October at a further planning committee meeting.

DEBRA FOX

Cllr Roger André, town mayor, said: "I don't think the money can substitute for the blight on the views of Haverhill. We are not persuaded that it has any relevance to the planning arguments we've already raised."

Town clerk Will Austin said councillors thought it was "highly irregular" that the possibility of community money was not included in the first instance.

Mr Sills explained that the proposed community funds were not included in the submission to St Edmundsbury because they "are not material to the planning process".

It has not yet been confirmed what the £15,000 will go towards if the turbine is approved – but Mr Sills has suggested one of the best options could be to consult with the community or ask a board such as ONE Haverhill for advice to determine where the funding would be best used.

He added: "Apart from funding nearby community projects there are of course other benefits to the local area."

"The renewable nature of the Ladygate wind turbine means that people can be proud that their local region is doing its bit to help alleviate the growing problem of climate change."

Storm St Jude uproots tree

THE strength of this week's storm sent a tree crashing into a Haverhill garden.

The garden, in School Lane, was invaded by the tree which was snapped in half by the force of the wind, its roots protruding from the ground, on Monday morning.

Sharon Haytread was walking to work down the street when she spotted the damage.

Ms Haytread, who works as warehouse manager for Figleaves, said: "The wind wasn't too bad when I left but had obviously already started to do damage."

"I noticed lots of small branches and leaves in School

Lane and thought this would have been dangerous with all the car trips to school when I saw a large tree had fallen, snapping some of its roots and had landed on a garden wall and was taking up most of someone's back garden space."

Ms Haytread, of Vetch Walk, Haverhill, checked that no one was hurt and that there wasn't any damage to the house before moving on.

She said: "I was actually quite shocked at the sight and stopped to make sure the house was not damaged and that help wasn't needed and to count the blessings that the schoolchildren usually here at this time of morning were safely at home."

School Lane is home to Burton End Community Primary School, which is closed for half term.

Storm St Jude battered the county, overturning a double decker bus in Hadleigh and a lorry in Mendlesham.

Trees were also forced down onto cars and lorries by the wind. Suffolk Police urged the public only to make essential journeys during the stormy period, and issued safety advice for those who had to venture out of doors.

The county's police force received 200 weather-related calls between 8am and 9am – on average, they usually receive only 500 in 24 hours.

ON THE BALL: Charlton Athletic footballer Michael Morrison returns to Place Farm Primary Academy in Haverhill

Picture by Keith Heppell

Charlton star returns to his old stomping ground

PUPILS were put through their paces in a special football session held by a star player.

Charlton Athletic footballer Michael Morrison visited Place Farm Primary Academy to coach the children into being match fit.

The footballer attended both Place Farm and Castle Manor Academy when growing up in Haverhill, and says it is important to inspire youngsters.

He attended the school on October 21 and launched a football project to run at the secondary school through half term.

The programme finished yesterday (October 30).

He has also pledged to attend Place Farm every Monday to hold similar sessions, including small games, where he will provide tips on playing in different positions.

Michael said: "I'm looking forward to returning more regularly after half term."

"I've made sure that I can spare the time each Monday so that I will be able to come along in addition to my coaches each week."

Elijah Hunte, Year 6 pupil, said: "It was brilliant to get tips from a professional and I'm looking forward to taking part in more sessions in the future."

Design for new town clock gets a big tick

DEBRA FOX

ANGEL-like figures made from stainless steel will soon be watching over shoppers and residents after the design for a town clock was passed.

Masterminded by students from Samuel Ward Academy and supervised by Neil Williams, head of art and design at the school, the new clock will be visible from Jubilee Walk, as well as the nearby bus station and car park.

The town council proposed to pledge £10,000 towards Haverhill's new timepiece, and at a meeting on Tuesday councillors approved the design.

Mr Williams said: "This is brilliant news and once again a fantastic opportunity for the young members of our schools and community to get a first-hand experience working on a community project. We are all over the moon."

"We think the design we have come up with is very impressive. It's going to be made entirely from stainless steel, which will be very low-cost."

The clock will have three faces, which will be linked by the figurines and built on top of three prongs.

Mr Williams explained that the shape of clock has been inspired by the Olympic torch, which journeyed through the town last year.

He said: "The figures are semi-angels similar to the Oscar with outstretched

ART: How the clock, left, will look in situ arms. They're stylised like the Rolls Royce figure and I think they're very uplifting."

Students from other schools across the town are going to be invited to take part in the clock-making and members of the public are invited to join in too.

Workshops will be held every Sunday at Samuel Ward to complete the work. Mr Williams said: "I don't think it will take very long to build once we get started."

The town council made some suggestions to the existing design, including that the clock faces should be made larger and that they should have clear numerical information displayed.

The possibility of including Haverhill Town Council's logo was also raised, as was the option of recognising engineering company Metcraft - which may be providing materials for the project - in the design.

If the budget allows, the town council has also suggested including internal lighting in the base.

Will Austin, town clerk, said: "Town councillors have expressed their thanks to the students who have worked so hard thus far to arrive at a beautiful and elegant design, which will stand as a statement piece of artwork for Haverhill."

Diagnosed with cancer while pregnant – but I fought back

Now mum's planning ride of her life to help others

MY ROCKS: Kerry Farrant pictured with husband Lee and daughters Lacey and Esmay; right, she underwent treatment for cancer while pregnant DISCOVERING you have cancer is devastating news whenever you hear it.

But imagine being told you have the disease when you are 12 weeks pregnant and only 28 years old.

Now mum-of-two Kerry Farrant has fought off the disease and is preparing to give as much as she can to help others and say thank you. Kerry found a lump when she was pregnant with youngest daughter Esmay, now 3.

After undergoing a mastectomy and chemotherapy, Kerry was induced at 34 weeks and her baby girl was born weighing only 3lbs 14oz.

Post-pregnancy, Kerry, now 32, continued with chemotherapy and underwent radiotherapy before having reconstructive surgery.

Kerry, of Mill Hill, Haverhill, said: "He [the surgeon] said it wasn't good news and at that point I broke down hysterically. I was absolutely gobsmacked, cancer didn't even enter my mind."

Throughout her treatment, Kerry took part in weekly group phonecalls through Breast Cancer Care, which allowed women suffering from the disease to connect with each other.

Earlier this year, Kerry signed up for the Women V Cancer Ride the Night challenge – a 100km cycle through London – next May for Breast Cancer Care, Jo's Cervical Cancer Trust and Ovarian Cancer Action.

She had hoped to raise £200 as a thank-you for the support the charity gave to her.

The 32-year-old said: "I think I raised that on the first day. I would love to hit the £3,000 mark."

More than £800 has been pledged so far on the mum's Just Giving page, with months to go until the ride.

Kerry, who has another daughter Lacey, 5, is also holding a fundraising evening at The New Croft, Chalkstone Way, on November 22 with more than 25 stalls, a tombola – and chest-waxing for the men.

Two willing volunteers offered to undergo the beauty treatment to add to Kerry's total – between them they have already raised £300.

There's also a raffle taking place on the night and the top prize is a family weekend away worth £150. Participants can also win £100 cash, a luxury hamper, a L'oreal goodie bag and other treats donated by Haverhill's businesses.

Kerry said: "I had no idea at all how many prizes and how much help we'd get. We didn't realise how generous people would be."

"Thank you to Pete at The New Croft for letting us have the hall for free and also thanks to Highfield Event group for providing a marquee free of charge to enable us to invite many more people."

Kerry described husband Lee, 39, and the rest of her family as "rocks" during her treatment. She was signed off from the hospital last month.

"I was very positive throughout everything and I fought it the whole way", said Kerry.

"I had to get up and take care of Lacey and Esmay was growing inside me. I had to stay strong."

Kerry's event is taking place at The Newcroft on November 22 from 6pm-10pm.

Roll of honour for war dead

RELATIVES of those named on Haverhill's Second World War memorial are being sought.

Haverhill's Family History Group is appealing for information about the 35 men named on the monument.

Members have recently learned more about Private Clifford Buttle, from the wife of his cousin.

Greta Pavey contacted the group about Private Buttle, son of William and Beatrice Buttle, and her late husband Sidney.

Mrs Pavey told how both men were at the fall of Singapore on February 15, 1942, and were taken as prisoners of war along with a contingent of local servicemen.

The life stories of all of those named on the memorial are due to be compiled into a roll of honour, which will be released to the public next year – the 75th anniversary of the start of the Second World War.

The group's next meeting is taking place on November 14 at the Old Independent Church in Haverhill.

Non-members are also welcome to attend for a cost of £2.50 with tea or coffee included.

If you have any information about the Second World War memorial, contact project leader Joan Key on 01440 703216 or Alan Bumpstead on 01440 704157.

Window smashed

A PARKED car has been broken into by vandals.

A grey Vauxhall, parked in Chauntry Road, Haverhill, had its driver's side window smashed by a large lump of concrete.

The attempted theft happened between 2pm on October 28 and 8am on October 29.

Officers carried out a search on the vehicle, but it is thought that nothing was taken.

Call Haverhill Police on 101 if you have any information.

Spooky trail for all

CREEPY creatures to scare and surprise will be lurking in East Town Park tomorrow.

Haverhill Town Council's Pumpkin Trail invites brave trick or treaters to attend the fire-themed event.

The Hallowe'en trail will have many flame-related surprises in store for brave guests – but the key ingredient to the evening is pumpkins.

Nick Keeble, arts manager, said: "This is one of my favourite events of the year."

"It's a great event for all family members, right from grandparents to babies, and it's brilliant to see everybody dressed up and in the spirit of it."

"There will be a real woodland feel to it too."

The council has been appealing for unwanted pumpkin donations to really spice up the trail.

To give your Hallowe'en carvings a taste of the action bring them to Haverhill Arts Centre, Haverhill Library or East Town Park Countryside Centre before noon tomorrow (November 1).

Mr Keeble has assured residents that the pumpkins will be properly disposed of afterwards, and that the event is a way to give them a last stand to see out the season.

The trail starts at 7pm from Coupals Road and entry is free – all children must be accompanied by an adult.

Town mourns loss of ex-mayor Les

ELEANOR DICKINSON

A MUCH-loved former Haverhill mayor passed away after a year-long battle with cancer last week.

Cllr Les Ager died in his sleep in the early hours of October 24 after suffering from lymphoma.

A major figure in the Haverhill community, Cllr Ager, from Roman Way, Haverhill, served as town mayor on two occasions and has been both a town and borough councillor since 2005.

An active figure within the local arts scene, he conducted Haverhill Silver Band for 30 years, was musical director for 48 shows by the Centre Stage Company and did 35 years worth of the annual Carols for All concert.

The father of two and grandfather of three was awarded the British Empire Medal for his services to music in April this year.

Roger André, Haverhill Mayor, said of his work: "We stand alongside all those groups that Les supported in saluting his musical legacy to the town."

Will Austin, town clerk, also paid tribute to a "popular figure" and a "lovely man".

He said: "Our thoughts are with Les' wife Jean and his family at this time."

"Councillors will want to pay a fitting tribute to such a significant figure in the Haverhill community."

He added: "On a personal note, he was a lovely man, who was always heavily involved in the community, even while fighting his illness. He will be greatly missed."

Cllr Ager was elected to the town council in January 2006, and was successful in re-election in May 2007. He was also voted in to represent Haverhill East Ward on St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

He took up the post of deputy mayor in 2007, and stepped in to lead the council later that year when mayor Ted Treble died suddenly.

After his mayoralty, Les continued to be an active town councillor, taking up issues on behalf of his constituents and frequently representing the council at events in the local area and further afield.

Jim Morgan, chairman of the Centre Stage Company, said: "I have known him all my life, since I was a child. He did a tremendous amount of work for the arts in Haverhill.

"His death was a huge shock for us. He was supposed to come watch the performance of Return to the Forbidden Planet the night after he died, so it was very sad him not being there."

Richard Pannell, secretary of the Haverhill Silver Band, said: "The passing of Les, our band president, is sad news for all of us, especially those of us who enjoyed his steering of the band in the 70s and 80s from what was essentially a village band towards what it is today."

"But his musical contributions to Haverhill and beyond was merely a part of what he did."

"The honour of BEM that he received earlier this year somehow didn't seem enough, an understatement."

Cllr Ager and his wife Jean had been involved in a car accident in July this year, which left her hospitalised for four months. She was due to go home just two days after her husband's death.

Cllr André added: "Our thoughts and condolences are with Les' family at this time, and particularly with his wife Jean."

"I am sure the town will turn out in force to remember and to celebrate the life of a man who has truly earned his status as a leading Haverhillian."

The funeral is taking place on Wednesday, November 6 at the Old Independent Church at 11.30am. Family flowers only, but donations can be made in Cllr Ager's memory to East Anglian Air Ambulance and Leukaemia & Lymphoma Research.

Mayor joins charity for early Hallowe'en party

Haverhill mayor, Cllr Roger André, and deputy mayor, Cllr Maureen Byrne, joined members and volunteers at the LAMPH charity's Hallowe'en Party this month.

Members donned ghoulish fancy dress costumes to enjoy traditional apple-bobbing and rummage dipping in a spookily decorated Joan Garrod House.

Volunteers decorated the hall and provided suitably spooky snacks and drinks.

Cllr André said: "A great evening of fun and games culminated in the costume judging and prize-giving. The members clearly enjoyed this evening – as they do all their themed events."

"I am always amazed at how a small group of volunteer, led by Elaine Hatfield, manage to bring so much pleasure to the members with modest resources."

Cllr Byrne said: "It is a great pleasure to see the members having so much fun."

"Judging the best costumes is a real challenge – so much effort goes into every outfit."

Cadets learn how to save lives at first aid course

YOUNG cadets from the Haverhill St John Ambulance unit have successfully completed their initial first aid training course.

The group, which launched in April, learned the difference between a life lost and a life saved during their first stage of their training.

The group of 10- to 17-year-olds were presented with their Young First Aider certificate at a ceremony last Thursday.

Cadet youth leader, Sheena Ellum, said: "You're never too young to learn first aid and becoming a Cadet not only equips these young people with vital life-saving skills, but also works on their personal development and confidence. It's wonderful to see the progress they've made and the skills they've learned."

"All the Cadets should be really proud of their achievements."

The 15 new cadets have spent the last few months learning essential first aid, such as how to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and how to treat someone who's choking.

AWARD: Jamie Culleton, Jordan Pugh, Greg Malyon, Georgina McGivern and Anya Heath with their black belt certificates

Club members make the grade and take home black belt awards

MEMBERS of a karate club are celebrating success after undergoing a gruelling test.

Students spent four and a half hours breaking pieces of wood with their feet and hands, being attacked with batons, chairs and various other weapons, and using their self-defence skills during a sparring session.

After the intense grading, Georgina

McGivern and Anya Heath were awarded their 1st Dan Black Belt status.

Jamie Culleton and Jordan Pugh attained their Cadet Black Belts after the hard work.

Greg Malyon, head coach at HWFK also passed his grading, and is now a 3rd Dan Black Belt.

Mr Malyon, who became a club coach in 1999, said: "The black belt grading is not purely about delivering excellent technique, it is also about fitness and stamina, having the 'know how' and awareness, but most importantly, having the heart to carry on when you're physically and mentally exhausted.

"Georgina, Anya, Jamie and Jordan all proved they could do that, as they all went way beyond what they thought they were capable of, and can all be very pleased and proud of what they have achieved."

Contact Greg on 07811 878328, e-mail HWFK@sky.com or search the Haverhill Wado freestyle Karate on Facebook for more information.

The club meets every Monday and Wednesday between 7pm and 9pm at the Chalkstone Community Centre.

Chaplain's son 'hacked NASA'

DEBRA FOX

A BAPTIST minister's son from Stradishall has been charged with hacking into thousands of American computer systems, including those of the US Army and NASA.

Lauri Love, 28, was arrested last Friday at his home under the Computer Misuse Act (CMA) and charged by US authorities in New Jersey, where he allegedly used a server.

He has been released on police bail until next February.

Love, of Ash Walk, is accused of breaching the US systems in order to steal "massive quantities" of confidential data resulting in millions of dollars of losses.

The 28-year-old was arrested by officers from the UK's National Crime Agency (NCA) and is charged with one count of accessing a US department or agency computer without authorisation and one count of conspiring to do the same.

Neighbours of his family's home saw police removing computer equipment from the property over the weekend.

Student Kayleigh Streeton, 18, said: "We knew there was something going on but it wasn't until we heard it on the news that we realised what he was accused of.

"You didn't see him around the estate much and, when you do see him out, he mostly keeps to himself. His parents are friendly with their neighbours and they seem like nice people."

His father Alexander Love, 60, a Baptist minister, works as a chaplain at HMP Highpoint North. His mother Sirkka-Liisa Love, 59, also works at the jail as a teacher.

Andy Archibald, NCA spokesman, said: "This arrest is the culmination of close joint working by the NCA, Police Scotland and our international partners.

"Cyber-criminals should be aware that no matter where in the world you commit cyber crime, even from remote places, you can and will be identified and held accountable for your actions."

The hacking reportedly took place over the last 12 months. If convicted, Love faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $250,000 (£155,000) fine, or twice the total gain or loss from the offence.

Love is claimed to have worked alongside co-conspirators who are believed to be in Australia and Sweden, but neither have been charged.

US Attorney Paul Fishman said: "According to the indictment, Lauri Love and conspirators hacked into thousands of networks, including many belonging to the United States military and other agencies."

"As part of their alleged scheme, they stole military data and personal identifying information belonging to servicemen and women. Such conduct endangers the security of our country and is an affront to those who serve."

EAGER cubs gave up their evening to raise money for a cancer charity.

Cubs from the 2nd Haverhill Sea Scout group invited friends and family to a coffee evening for Macmillan Cancer Support.

Their hard work, which was part of the Cub Community Challenge, raised £160 for the charity.

The cubs brought along cake donations to sell and during the evening guests learned more about what Macmillan does to help those suffering with cancer.

Town welcomes launch of park

COUNCILLORS and residents gathered to formally welcome the Jubilee Park last week.

The extensive stretch of green space in Haverhill was unveiled to the public last Thursday more than a year after gaining planning permission.

The £180,000 investment transformed the former site of Clements Primary School into a parkland area, a new playground and allotments.

Cllr Anne Gower, St Edmundsbury Cabinet member for Haverhill said: "It was named to celebrate the Queen's Diamond Jubilee and I hope it is enjoyed for many years to come".

Previously, St Edmundsbury Borough Council had been inundated with applications for allotments, with as much as a 70-strong waiting list when the plan finally gained approval in March 2012.

The cost of the entire project has been about £150,000, including around £30,000 for the play equipment.

A WARM WELCOME: Residents and councillors attend the launch of the new Jubilee Park

The house was broken into between 6.50am and 11.30am on October 23.

Police are appealing for information from members of the public who were in the area at the time or who saw any suspicious activity to call 101.

AN employee from Suffolk Police has been chosen to lead a national police association.

Franstine Jones was elected president of the National Black Police Association (NBPA) on October 17 – the first woman to be chosen for the post.

The group strives to improve the working environment for its members and in turn improves services to the public.

Join in Christmas disco fun

EVERYONE is invited to join in the festive spirit at a disco.

The Befriending Scheme, which supports vulnerable adults, is holding the dance on November 30 at Haverhill Rugby Club on School Lane.

The event will run from 7.30pm-11pm.

Where are all the skills?

EXPANSION plans for a bespoke furniture company are being threatened due to lack of the right staff.

Jan Cavelle Furniture, on Rookwood Way, Haverhill, plans to double its craftspeople in the next year, but is now struggling to find workers with the skills that are required.

The business was accepted onto the Government-backed Growth Accelerator scheme earlier in the year, and hoped to expand the brand into other areas of furnishing supply as well as doubling the workforce.

It currently has seven positions to fill.

Owner and entrepreneur Jan Cavelle said: "There is such a shortage of people with traditional skills that we are struggling to fill positions.

"It never occurred to me that one of the key obstacles I would face in business was the recruitment of skilled, quality staff who are passionate about their trade, particularly being based in Suffolk where traditional crafts are still respected.

"We are already struggling to recruit craftspeople for the vacancies we have at present and it is a real worry that our expansion may be threatened if we cannot find more quality craftspeople when we double our workforce next year."

Other businesses are stuck in the same situation too.

The company is currently recruiting for a woodworker trainee, senior wood machinist, senior cabinet maker/bench joiner, mid level bench joiner/furniture assembler, despatch assistant/relief delivery driver, customer service person and sales account manager.

ON A HIGH: Bruce Davidson, second left, and some of the group atop Kilimanjaro

Bruce sets his sights high for 60th birthday

INSTEAD of spending his milestone birthday in the comfort of his own home, businessman Bruce Davidson did something a bit different.

The 60-year-old celebrated his special day from the summit of Kilimanjaro after completing the climb on October 20.

Bruce, of Jupiter Close, Haverhill, spent five days ascending the Tanzanian mountain in an attempt to raise money for the Rosie Maternity Hospital in Cambridge.

The dad-of-four's last fundraising attempt for the Rosie took place in 1991, when he ran the London Marathon and raised £2,000.

Currently, his total is at

DEBRA FOX

£1,115.

Bruce wanted to bring in his birthday with a bang, and take on a challenge to remember.

He said: "When I decided to climb Kilimanjaro for my 60th I knew it was not going to be easy.

"While I say it myself, I launched into a gruelling training schedule which I believe got me to the top and back again despite the very heavy cold, no sleep for four nights and of course the debilitating altitude."

During the challenge, temperatures ranged between 35 and 5 degrees in the day time.

On summit night, the temperature was -15.

Despite plans to take on a range of other activities in coming years, Bruce says none will be as extreme as Kilimanjaro.

Hailing himself as the oldest person in the climb, Bruce said the other members of the group and the guides were very respectful calling him Papa and Simba.

He said: "Was it a holiday? No, it was very hard work but with some spectacular views."

"Friendships were made and whilst I was easily the oldest in the group we all got on very well."

Visit www.justgiving.com/brucedavidson to make a donation to the climb and help Bruce reach his target.

'Wear a poppy with pride'

PICK up a poppy to show your support for the armed forces – that's the message from the Royal British Legion in Suffolk.

People from all walks of life will be donning the red flowers and contributing to the RBL Poppy Appeal 2013 over the coming weeks up to Remembrance Sunday.

Charles Byrne, director of fundraising at the RBL, said: "We support the entire Armed Forces community past and present, but families are at the heart of the Poppy Appeal 2013. We recognise the strength of mothers, fathers, partners and children in Armed Forces families, who serve alongside their loved ones every single day, and often need practical care and advice too.

The fundraising target in Suffolk is £625,000, which will go towards the Legion's national target of £37 million to continue its vital work delivering direct, practical care and support to the Armed Forces community.

Pet owner's anti-freeze cat warning

A PET owner has spoken out about the "heart-breaking" death of her cat due to anti freeze poisoning.

As winter approaches, veterinary nurse Jody Blyth-Tancock has urged pet owners to familiarise themselves with the signs, such as vomiting, seizures, excessive drinking and increased urination, to avoid unnecessary deaths.

Ethylene glycol, a toxin found commonly in antifreeze, has a sweet taste but can quickly lead to death if treatment isn't accessed quickly.

Jody, who works for the Animal Health Trust (AHT), in Kentford, said: "Poor Marshal's passing came as such a shock for so many reasons. The last thing I would have suspected was antifreeze poisoning, particularly as the cold weather was yet to hit."

She returned to her home to find her eight-year-old Bengal-cross cat, displaying a severe stiffness in his posture. She examined Marshal for any obvious problems but couldn't find any so she kept him indoors overnight to monitor his behaviour.

Over the next 24 hours, Marshal did not improve and began vomiting so Jody took him to the AHT's Small Animal Centre for further examinations which revealed his renal values were incredibly high.

This indicated Marshal had ingested ethylene glycol and his kidneys were giving up.

Jody said: "It was heart-breaking to watch him deteriorate so rapidly, and highlights how quickly you have to act when poisoning is suspected.

"I just hope that Marshal's death will not be in vain and his story will help to avoid other animals suffering the same fate, and save other pet owners from suffering the heartbreak of losing their beloved pet."

For more information go to www.aht.org.uk/antifreeze.

REPTILES: They were not cute or cuddly, but the animals' visit still made for an exciting day at Little Wonders Pre-school

Slimy creatures slither into nursery for reptile day

THERE was a reptile invasion at a Haverhill nursery – with a host of lizards and snakes slithering into Little Wonders Pre-School.

Local reptile specialist Matthew Robson and his daughter Megan Robson brought in the selection of animals for the children to handle.

The children were also able to learn more about the upkeep and care of reptiles as pets.

Keelie Cordwell, from the nursery, said: "It was an experience. We've got a lot of new children who have just joined the school and it was a great way to get them exploring new and different experiences.

"What was also brilliant was that it was an event which everybody, including the children with special needs, could get involved in. And they all really, really enjoyed it. We made sure everyone, even the more timid ones, had a go either holding or touching something."

She added: "Matthew is really passionate about looking after reptiles and animal welfare, so the children were able to learn more about that.

"It was also great for them to see not all animals are cute and cuddly, but still deserve respect."

CHILDREN were given a serious lesson on how to survive things that go bump in the night this week.

Following in the footsteps of Buffy and Van Helsing, the kids gathered at East Town Park, Haverhill, to learn some survival techniques Hallowe'en-style.

As part of the survival challenge, the children learned how to carve pumpkins, make a spooky camp fire and took part in ghost hunting archery.

Run by Abbeycroft Leisure, which runs Haverhill Leisure Centre, the day was aimed to get children out in the fresh air before the winter chills start.

Amelia Epton, Abbeycroft's sports development and physical activity officer, said: "This October half term our mission is to get children outside and enjoying activities in East Town Park before the weather turns cold."

"We have lots of Hallowe'en inspired outdoor activities in our survival challenge to give youngsters plenty of fresh air and keep them occupied for the school holidays."

The activity-filled day is being followed by another, when youngsters will get another chance to have more sport-themed Hallowe'en fun with ghost hunting archery today from 2pm to 3.30pm at Haverhill Leisure Centre.

This will follow on from a morning of scrambling up the centre's new climbing wall.

For children aged 6 and above the popular School's Out Holiday Camps have been running activities including athletics, swimming, basketball and laser blast throughout the week.

Amid a week of high-energy activity, children got to take a break over film afternoons and arts and crafts, plus a Frankie & Benny's pizza-making workshop.

Apology over 'psychotic' costume

A FANCY dress shop has apologised for selling a Hallowe'en costume of a "psychotic nympho".

In the wake of the outcry over Asda and Tesco's "psycho ward" costumes last month, Party Mania in Cambridge was found selling the outfit on its website as part of its "Halloween Hell's Asylum" collection.

A straitjacket costume was also found among the Hallowe'en stock at the shop in Burleigh Street.

Party Mania also has a branch in Haverhill, in Queen Street.

The manager of the Cambridge store said: "I do apologise to any member of the public. We wouldn't do anything to offend anyone."

Treva speaks of her new life as a woman

After 23 years in the army, Trevor Askey left his job and his wife to follow his dream – of living the rest of his life as a woman – and marrying his childhood sweetheart, Victoria. Emma Higginbotham reports.

LIFE CHANGE: Treva married childhood sweetheart Victoria.

ARRIVING to meet Treva and Victoria Askey, I'm not quite sure what to expect. I know that Treva is undergoing gender reassignment – born Trevor, the 42-year-old was in the army for more than two decades, but is now living as a woman. Will she be dolled up to the nines, with spidery lashes, high heels and a flouncy frock?

Of course not. Treva (pronounced 'Treeva') is dressed much the same as her wife, and much the same as any woman would at home, in jeans and a T-shirt – and pink fluffy slippers. Snuggled up together on the sofa and always quick to laugh, it's impossible not to warm to the couple, who married just over two years ago. But it's been an incredibly difficult journey for both of them, a journey that began nearly 30 years ago.

Victoria will never forget seeing Trevor for the first time. At 13, she'd just moved to a Lincolnshire village with her family; Trevor was two years older to the day. "I was walking with my mate, he went past on his bike, and I was like 'Oh my God, he's gorgeous!' My mate said 'Don't look, don't look', because people thought you were a bit of a bully at school, didn't they?" she says, turning to Treva. "You were unapproachable."

"I didn't know what was going on with myself, so I just kept everyone else away from me," shrugs Treva. "Something was wrong, but I didn't know what, so I've always pushed everyone away."

Even so, Victoria, who "fancied him something chronic", eventually broke through his tough exterior, and they began dating. "It was only for a couple of weeks, and then he started being obnoxious and told me to go away," she says. "In hindsight I think it was probably because I was getting too close. I was devastated."

At 16, Trevor joined the Royal Engineers, "to be a man; I was trying to prove myself," and they lost contact. Victoria married at 18, but the marriage turned violent and quickly fell apart; a year later, she found herself living with her baby son in a women's refuge.

Meanwhile, Trevor was involved in a horrific road accident while serving in Kenya. Driving an army doctor and a soldier to a hospital, he struck a car that pulled out in front of him. Trevor badly damaged his back; the doctor was killed. Back in the UK, Victoria sensed something was wrong.

"I had a dream that something bad had happened," she recalls. "I can't remember what the dream was, but I remember waking up and thinking 'Oh my God, if anything happens to Trevor, nobody would tell me, and I wasn't having that."

"So I sent a Christmas card with my telephone number, saying 'Are you all right?' And you weren't great, were you?"

The couple, who hadn't seen each other for five years, met up, "and we chatted all day, and had way too many alcopops," laughs Victoria, "and then I proposed," adds Treva. "You get a sense that you should be with someone, don't you? It was just 'Hmm, hang on a minute, maybe I shouldn't have pushed her away when I did, and that's the person I should be with'."

But Victoria, still reeling from her violent marriage, said no. "I was gutted," admits Treva, "but if someone makes a choice it's their choice, you can't force them to do something." Once again, the couple lost touch.

By now in his early 20s, Trevor was beginning to realise that he was, in fact, a woman in a man's body. "I saw something on TV about someone who'd gone through transition, and I thought 'Hang on a minute, that's me...'"

But rather than facing the situation, Trevor avoided it further; he got married – and stayed married for 14 years. "I was just conforming to society. I covered it up. Everything I read about these people said that they were shunned, punched, kicked, killed... so I just played along, played the game."

But that nagging feeling wouldn't go away and, whenever he had time to himself, Trevor would put on women's clothes that he'd bought online. "I started dressing up to be more relaxed; just casual clothes and jewellery, just to be comfortable. Later on, my wife used to go to her mum's every other weekend, so that was something to look forward to. She must have thought 'Why is he trying to get rid of me?'"

It wasn't until 2001 that the couple met again, after finding each other on Friends Reunited. And, although they both had long-term partners (Victoria went on to have two more sons, now aged 10 and 6), they'd meet up every year or so for coffee, and spend hours "putting the world to rights" – and avoiding their feelings for each other. "I still fancied the pants off you," shrugs Victoria.

By 2007, Trevor decided that the time had come to open up about his gender issues, and the obvious confidante was Victoria. Telling her, via an online MSN chat, was "the hardest thing I've done. The thing is, you know you want to be with someone, and you know that that someone likes you, but they like the person you've been pretending to be. So what's going to happen?"

And Victoria's reaction? "I was just really upset that you hadn't told me before," she says. "I said 'Why didn't you tell me years ago?'"

They arranged to meet, but Victoria accidentally missed a digit on the phone number she'd given him; Trevor thought it was deliberate and, once again, cut off contact. "You tell someone a big thing, they give you a dodgy number... So I thought OK, I'll wash my hands of you."

"He disappeared for three years," adds Victoria. "But I made a conscious decision to send an email every week, just so the line of communication was open. But he never replied."

Until 2010, that is. Out of the blue, Victoria started receiving spam emails from Trevor's email account, "so I sent a message saying 'Stop sending me these bloody emails!'" To her astonishment, he answered.

"I nearly had kittens," she laughs. "It said 'I'm not sending you dodgy emails, I'm really sorry'. So I sent one back saying 'Oh my God, you've replied! How are you?' And you sent one back saying 'I'm fine, learning to live the single life...'"

Once again, the couple met up, but this time it felt different: this time they faced up to the fact that they were meant to be together. Victoria left her partner, and the couple had their first official date in September 2010.

New Year's Eve the same year proved to be a momentous occasion: Trevor dressed in women's clothes, then Victoria made her over: it was the first time anyone had seen Trevor as Treva. How did she look? "Cute," smiles Victoria. "Cute as a button."

The night was also significant for another reason: again there was a marriage proposal, but this time it came from Victoria.

In September 2011, Trevor, who'd been based at Waterbeach, retired from the army; they married two weeks later and settled in Ramsey. Within days Treva started taking small steps on her journey to womanhood, first wearing a bra ("under a massive coat," grins Victoria), then nail varnish and women's boots in public.

The next step was to reveal all to friends and family. They told Victoria's parents and her ex first, because of the children, but everyone else found out in one hit when Treva posted a letter on Facebook.

To the couple's surprise – but delight – everyone was incredibly positive. "People have said 'There was something about you, but... yeah, it makes sense now,'" says Treva.

Since then, she has been taking hormone pills which have given her a bust, and six months ago had a nose job ("my nose was humungous!"). She's also been having regular electrolysis to tackle facial hair growth, Botox to soften her brow, and hopes to have her sex change operation as soon as possible.

Do people stare? "People stare," she nods. "Let's say we go to Tesco's. I concentrate on shopping, Victoria concentrates on people watching: if we get a funny look from a group of lads or something, we just move on."

"You get people looking and smiling, as if to say 'Oh bless,'" says Victoria, "and then you get the 'Oh my God!' stares, the nasty looks. Which is rare round here. We've had no abuse, just looks."

"We've got cyber friends who are going through transition and they're going through hell; they walk down the street and get abuse hurled at them, but people round here have been absolutely brilliant," agrees Treva.

The parents in the playground have been completely accepting, she adds, as have Victoria's children, who've taken it all in their stride: "The young one says 'He's my stepmum,'" she smiles.

So how do people see them as a couple? "Strange!" they say in unison. Does that, I ask Victoria, make you a lesbian? "I love the way you said that," she chuckles, mimicking my earnest tone.

"We get asked it by people quite often. Yeah, if you want to label it, we're lesbians. But we're not, because she hasn't had the op yet. To me she's a woman with dangly bits, that's all." And do they have a sexual relationship? "Yes; it's not 'sex' sex, it's – intimacy," says Treva.

So what would Treva's advice be to someone who may also feel as though they're trapped in the wrong body?

"Do it younger. It's so much easier when your body hasn't formed; and people are much more accepting these days."

And does Victoria think she'd have felt the same way had Trevor become Treva earlier? "Oh God yeah, absolutely – because I was in love with the person," she says.

"They always say marriage is better second time around, but when you're with the person you should have been with in the first place, then it's awesome."

Victoria has published the first part of her journal as a book: called Too Deep: My journey alongside my husband as she transitions to become my beautiful wife. It costs £5.50, or £2.89 as an eBook, from www.veaskey.com.

A RECRUITMENT agency is celebrating the achievements of an employee.

Kate Wright, operations manager at Crem Recruitment, has recently been appointed as an ambassador for the Institute of Recruiters.

Managing director Colin Saunders said: "We are extremely proud of Kate and what she has achieved."

"She is the heartbeat of our branch network and has fully deserved her ambassador title. We are an agency that is committed to the highest standards and we feel that Kate's accolade is a credit to herself and everything we stand for as a company."

Kate said: "The directors at Crem have been incredibly supportive and have worked closely with the IOR in the past so I knew of the stature that

Delegate – to team of talented people

NKEM MPAMAH

THE art of delegation, risk-taking, surrounding yourself with a great team and working on projects you really believe in are the keys to success, as chosen by billionaire Virgin founder Richard Branson.

At Business Mastery Summit, where we support successful entrepreneurs and business executives with the tools to create unimaginable business breakthrough results through entrepreneurial coaching, leadership development training, and innovative thinking, we expand on each of Richard Branson's business skills and more.

We are helping entrepreneurs to live these principles, and have seen them make huge differences in their lives and entrepreneurial results.

The number one problem that makes

FOUNDER: Nkem Mpamah, founder and CEO of Cognition Global Concepts delegation seem so ineffective is that you're probably delegating to a wrong person.

Delegation is most effective when you identify a skill you're not great at, and assign the task that requires that skill to someone in your team, who is superb in delivering the results.

Focus on what you are great at, and delegate your weakness to someone who has the strength for it.

In my Leadership Development Training mastery class and Business Mastery Summit, we teach our clients how to create Quantum Groups, the art of surrounding themselves with the best talents they can find or afford – nobody succeeds alone.

You can't succeed alone – find and surround yourself with incredible network of talented people who are invested in your success.

They are people with complimentary skills, diverse opinions, and interesting experiences, who want to contribute to your vision.

Japanese maples are a treat

AS AUTUMN leaves begin to change colour, Hannah Stephenson admires the Japanese maple, with its spectacular foliage which can range from burnt orange and yellow to burgundy and everything in between.

They are among the most spectacular sights of autumn, as their leaves turn sizzling shades of red, burnt orange and yellow.

Japanese maples, or acers, may be expensive but they are still as popular as ever, possibly because there are varieties for almost every situation, even if you have the smallest urban garden.

With slow-growing types that are suitable for pots, larger varieties which can create stunning backdrops and those which will drape above smaller rock plants, in woodland settings or as a framework to ponds, there's no excuse not to have a Japanese maple in your garden.

They will grow happily on acid or alkaline soils, need sun for good foliage colour but should be kept clear of biting winds, which will burn their delicate foliage, or drought, which will cause their leaves to go brown at the tips.

However, they're not keen on chalk, so the soil needs to be lime free and preferably slightly acidic. I've had Acer palmatum var. dissectum 'Garnet' in ericaceous compost in a pot for five years and it has thrived, being kept well watered and sheltered from harsh winds. Replacing the surface compost of the pot with new compost every year will also help keep the nutrients flowing in a permanent planting.

Alternatively, plant them in large pots of John Innes loam-based compost for the best results, or a compost of equal parts John Innes No 2 and a soil-less multipurpose compost, which hangs on to water and nutrients more effectively.

Among the best for autumn leaves is the Acer griseum, whose foliage turns orange and brilliant red in autumn, and which has the added interest of craggy, peeling bark in shades of orange-brown and cinnamon, which is most noticeable in winter when the tree is bare. It grows to around 10m (30ft).

BACK TO SCHOOL: Kids get a taste of the "hard times" in Sturmer

Past brought to life

CHILDREN were transported back to a time of hard knocks and nails on chalk boards when a Victorian classroom was recreated in Sturmer.

Residents of Sturmer Local History Group Heritage created the schoolroom using the Lottery Fund All Our Stories.

Organised by Jo Porth and Linda Bevan, the classroom formed part of new four-mile heritage trail around the village.

Ms Porth, chairman of the group, said: "We hope to promote and preserve what we have in Sturmer for future generations and that will make it all worthwhile."

Four boards have been made and will be placed on a four mile walk around Sturmer.

The village heritage trail will be officially opened on Saturday by long-term resident Christopher Gurteen.

Residents urged to learn more about mental health at drop-in

A DROP-IN session encouraged residents to live healthier lives.

World Mental Health Day was celebrated in Haverhill with an event held at the town's Burton Centre.

The information session, co-ordinated by Community Action Suffolk and other local agencies, encouraged people to learn about mental health.

More than 4,000 people in Haverhill reportedly experience mental ill health every year – but only a quarter will seek and receive treatment.

Elaine Hewes, of Community Action Suffolk, said: "People of all ages and backgrounds in Suffolk are affected by mental ill health, and we want to let them know that there is a wide range of expert support and advice available."

"Great local organisations such as St Nicholas Hospice, Livewell Suffolk, Healthwatch and Sue Ryder are all here to help."

For more information on mental health services contact Elaine at Community Action Suffolk elaine.hewes@communityactionsuffolk.org.uk or 07990 576893.

Homecoming for nail technician to the stars

ELEANOR DICKINSON

AMY Winehouse, Leona Lewis and Priscilla Presley – these are just a few of the big names in showbiz for whom Jamie Nunn has designed nails.

The 31-year-old is legendary among celebrity circles for his talon talents.

And now, he has returned to his Haverhill roots and has just opened a new salon to give locals a taste of the glitzy life.

Jamie, who grew up in Rosefinch Close, said: "I have been designing nails for celebrity clients for quite a long time now. I've worked on The X Factor for quite a few years now, but I've had a lot of people ask me if I was going to set something up in my home town for a while.

"Then a friend of mine, who works as a hairdresser in Haverhill, asked if I wanted to join forces and open a nail salon and beauty spa next door."

Jamie, who works as The X Factor's chief nail technician, has manicured the fingers of major talents including Nicole Scherzinger, Alexandra Burke and even Harry Styles.

In the past he has worked for the tragic songstress Amy Winehouse and now continues to style her goddaughter Dionne Bromfield's nails.

He said: "Amy was lovely and I was really sad to hear when she died. There is a sad side of that celebrity work."

Now focusing his attention on the new beauty spa Enigma, which is twinned with the hair salon of the same name, Jamie hopes to spend more time with his family.

He said: "It has been getting to the point where I spend so much time in London that I don't get to see my family enough."

"My brother has a little girl, Matilda, who I idolise. He's got another baby on the way too. It was mainly family which brought me back."

He added: "I've had a lovely reception from the town so far. People are keen to hear the gossip of course, but everyone has been so supportive too."

"With celebrities it's always about working hard and making sure the client feels valued and that's what I want to continue to do here."

Suffolk warned against conmen after St Jude

ROGUE traders are taking advantage of the storm aftermath and offering residents door-to-door deals.

Suffolk Trading Standards are warning the public to be cautious when "salesmen" come knocking offering garden and building maintenance.

People have been tricked into paying very high prices for poor-quality work.

Cllr Colin Spence, Suffolk County Council's cabinet member for public protection, said: "No one should feel pressured into making a rash buying decision. If in doubt always think twice and get a second opinion."

"People should be extra vigilant about any trader who approaches them about carrying out repair or maintenance work on their home or garden following the storm."

"Often rogue traders are opportunists and will see this as a chance to target vulnerable, often elderly people."

Suffolk Trading Standards continually deal with complaints from those who have been conned on their own doorsteps, and the organisation are issuing safety tips in a bid to stop this from happening.

Never accept work from someone who is passing, or who insists it needs to be done at all.

Region's businesses are 'starting to spend again'

BUSINESSES across the East of England are "starting to spend again", suggest successful gross domestic product figures.

UK economic output rose by 0.8 per cent between July and September, demonstrating the best quarterly performance since 2010.

The official data builds on a 0.7 per cent GDP rise in the April-June period and a 0.4 per cent rise in the January-March period.

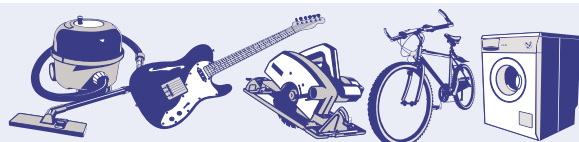

John Bridge OBE, CEO of Cambridgeshire Chambers of Commerce, says the increase shows that companies are being proactive and recognising overseas opportunities.

The new Haverhill

Research Park Project – a joint venture between Greater Cambridgeshire, Greater Peterborough and New Anglia LEP – has been hailed as a successful example of good work.

Grahame Nix, Chief Executive, Greater Cambridge Greater Peterborough LEP said: "These figures once again show the strength of the economy in the Greater Cambridge Greater Peterborough area."

"While there are variations within our patch, we believe that our businesses have the potential to make a significant positive impact on the UK economy as a whole."

GUIDE

Just Peachy

■ James and the Giant Peach, Cambridge Arts Theatre, until Saturday, November 2 at various times. Tickets £12.50-£17.50 from (01223) 503333 / cambridgeartstheatre.purchase-tickets-online.co.uk

ONE of the greatest of Roald Dahl's tales, James and the Giant Peach is at the Cambridge Arts Theatre this week in the form of an ingenious show complete with a technically wondrous spherical contraption – yep, an absolutely huge peach. Ella Walker caught up with Tom Gillies, who is playing James, to find out more.

It's the sinister dark edge, rubbing up against the lightness of adventure, that makes James and the Giant Peach stick in your mind. "It's such an iconic children's role," says Tom, admitting how big a responsibility – and a privilege – it is taking on the part of James. "It's a character that a lot of people feel like they know and love, and as an actor I get to bat to be a worthy contender for their favourite interpretation, in spite of stiff competition."

The most triumphant aspect of this production by the Birmingham Stage Company is, of course, the peach itself, which appears in several incarnations. "We have a peach that we inhabit, peaches that inflate, we even have audience participation..." says Tom mysteriously.

"A lot of people said to me at the outset, how on earth are you going to stage that?" he adds. "Some of the design work that's been done is great. It takes a lot of its inspiration from Heath Robinson, primarily known for his drawings of very grand, strange contraptions that usually fill quite a simple purpose in quite convoluted ways, so you'll have lots of hands on deck and ladders and pulleys and ropes and all that which is wonderfully quirky and suits Dahl down to a T."

Is the show as fun and magical as you'd imagine stepping into Dahl's world would be?

"Oh absolutely, absolutely," Tom buzzes. "You've got the magic, the underdog, the unlikely hero story, and some really polarising characters. James's aunts Spiker and Sponge are truly two of the most horrible characters in children's literature."

"There's a lot of laughs, larger than life characters and touching moments as well so it's a really – it sounds terribly clichéd – but a whirlwind of emotions and novelty."

Time for a last dance

AFTER the huge success of Dreamboats and Petticoats, Save the Last Dance For Me swings back to Cambridge Arts Theatre this November for one week only.

The show follows the adventures of two teenage girls during the heady summer of 1963. On holiday by themselves and free from their parents for the first time, they meet a handsome young American at the seaside who invites them to a dance at the local US Air Force base. The sisters soon become entangled in first love – realising that first love is not as simple as it first seems.

Set to a soundtrack of well-known classics such as A Teenager in Love, Suspicion, Sweets For My Sweet, and of course, Save the Last Dance for Me, this is a nostalgic journey back to a time when each passing week brought another rock 'n' roll classic.

■ The National Theatre Live's 2011 broadcast of the sell-out FRANKENSTEIN returns to cinemas as part of the National Theatre's 50th anniversary celebrations. Oscar winner Danny Boyle directs a sensational production with Benedict Cumberbatch as the creature and Jonny Lee Miller as Frankenstein. And of course it's showing on Hallowe'en, tonight at 7pm ...

■ Freehand Theatre who brought Little Red ... You Know Who to the Arts Centre, return with WHO'S BEEN SITTING IN MY CHAIR? at 11.30am and 2.30pm tomorrow, a tale that's not too BIG and not too small but just right. This is a delightful and playful version of a well-known tale – with porridge and bears and one-two-three chairs. Mind you, telling this story is not so easy when it's wintertime and the bears won't wake up. With original music, this play is for everyone who can count to three – especially if you're aged 3 to 7!

■ Rory Kinnear plays HAMLET in a dynamic production of Shakespeare's complex and profound play about the human condition, directed by Nicholas Hytner. Broadcast, as live from the National Theatre on Saturday November 2 at 7pm.

■ A recorded performance of SPARTACUS, one of the Bolshoi Ballet's masterpieces, is showing on Sunday November 3 at 3pm. A triumphal procession marks the return to Rome of the consul Crassus; among his chained prisoners are Spartacus and his wife Phrygia, both of whom are condemned to slavery. Spartacus is taken off to become a gladiator and is forced to kill a man in combat. Disgusted, he escapes to freedom but cannot bear the thought of Phrygia as a concubine and leads an attack to rescue the slave women.

■ We have the National Theatre Live 2010 broadcast of Alan Bennett's acclaimed play THE HABIT OF ART with the late Richard Griffiths, Frances De La Tour and Alex Jennings on Thursday November 7 at 7pm. Benjamin Britten seeks advice from his former collaborator and friend WH Auden in this look at the unsettling desires of two difficult men and at the ethics of biography, reflecting on growing old, on creativity and inspiration and on persisting when all passion's spent: ultimately, on the habit of art.

■ A charity CHRISTMAS SHOPPING EVENING will take place at the Arts Centre on Friday November 8 from 5pm to 9.30pm raising money and awareness for Pancreatic Cancer Research. There will be a great selection of Christmas gifts and goodies, a raffle with great prizes; you can even have your children/family photographed with a snow scene, a perfect Christmas present!

film of the week

AS she approaches her 79th birthday, national treasure Dame Judi Dench looks certain to be gifted a seventh Oscar nomination for her tour-de-force portrayal of a guilt-stricken mother.

It is a compelling performance of deep emotion based on a true story that deftly tugs the heartstrings without resorting to emotional manipulation or cloying sentiment.

Dame Judi is complemented by Steve Coogan as a cynical and world-weary journalist, who initially scoffs at the suggestion that he should pen an article about the matriarch and her heartbreaking ordeal.

But the tender and unexpectedly touching relationship that forms between these two

certificate 12A, 1h38m

characters from different generations and backgrounds provides Stephen Frears's uplifting film with its emotional thrust as the search for answers moves between continents.

The incredible road trip begins when Jane Lee (Anna Maxwell Martin) discovers her mother Philomena (Dench) fell pregnant as a teenager in 1950s Ireland and was forced to give up the baby to the sisters at Roscrea Abbey. Jane pitches the story to former Labour advisor turned BBC journalist Martin Sixsmith (Coogan).

After a reality check from his wife Kate (Simone Lahbib), Sixsmith agrees to help Philomena track down her boy. Using his connections, Martin takes Philomena to Washington DC to sift through official documents, hoping for a breakthrough to reunite the old woman with the son she never wanted to give up.

Throughout, Philomena clings to her faith, lighting a candle for her child. However, Sixsmith cannot conceal his contempt for religion, telling Philomena, "It's the Catholic Church that should be going to confession, not you!"

Tears flow freely as the eponymous heroine discovers the fate of her boy, seizing upon every nugget of information, no matter how banal, as if she had just won the lottery.

We certainly strike it very lucky with Frears's wonderful picture.

LEAF FALL: fuchsias spent the winter looking like bare sticks.

Wrapping up for the winter

I LOOKED out on my patio a few days ago to see a pelargonium I planted back in May coming into flower yet again, at a time when most of my summer pots have been emptied.

Despite a lot of rain, it's been a mild October, and this may lull many of us into a false sense of security about how long we leave it before offering our plants some protection from the winter chill.

As I live in a frost pocket, the pelargonium is going to come under cover soon. If you have pots of pelargoniums (bedding geraniums) which you want to enjoy next year, put them inside too, in a light, frost-free place such as a slightly heated greenhouse, a sheltered porch next to the house or an unheated spare room or conservatory, cutting them back to 10cm (4in). Don't expose them to warm central heating or they'll just wilt when you put them out next year.

Fuchsias, which lose their leaves entirely and spend winter looking like bare sticks, will need the same treatment. You'll hardly need to water them at all until growth resumes in spring, at which point you can repot them into John Innes No 2 potting compost and harden them off before placing them outside when the risk of frost has passed.

Marguerites (Argyranthe-

by Hannah Stephenson

mums) will also not stand any frost and are best dug up and potted, cut back by half and kept in a dry, cool, frost-free place that has sunlight through the winter, like a cool greenhouse. Water them sparingly to keep their roots dry until spring, when you can start to water them more frequently.

If your garden has a Mediterranean theme, you're likely to need to protect other vulnerable plants, such as cannas, olive trees, ginger lilies and dahlias, which may not survive winter frosts.

Leave dahlia tubers in the ground until the foliage has been blackened by frost, which may be as late as November, then cut the plants down to around 15cm (6in) from the ground and dig up the tubers. Shake off the soil, wash the tubers and turn them upside down so the moisture drains out of the hollow stems. When they've dried off, hang them in nets in a shed or store them in stacking trays with plenty of holes for ventilation.

Cannas need to be cut down before winter and mulched heavily, or dug up and put into pots only slightly bigger than their ball of roots, filling the gaps with compost, and kept in a frost-free place, ideally under the staging in a greenhouse.

Other plants that form tubers such as ginger lilies are best dug up at the end of the season, the top growth cut off with secateurs and then the tubers stored until spring in dry potting compost in a cool, frost-free place like a garage or shed. They can be planted out next year when all danger of frost has passed.

Pots of tender exotics such as citrus, palms and oleander which have graced your patio in summer will need to be moved back under cover, either into a cool conservatory or frost-free greenhouse, and will need to be watered sparingly throughout the winter.

If your tender plants are simply too big to move, then wrapping them in hessian or horticultural fleece may be the answer.

Network Q's great offer

TOP VAUXHALLS: Network Q offers comprehensive peace of mind for both new and used options

THIS month marks the 23rd anniversary for Network Q, Vauxhall's award-winning used car programme and, to celebrate, Murketts Vauxhall in Cambridge is hosting a special Birthday Sale Event.

Running until Monday, November 4, the retailer is inviting local motorists to join in the celebrations at the dealership at its sites in Cambridge and Huntingdon, where all customers who purchase a Network Q vehicle will drive away with a £500 cash gift (during event period only).

Stewart Lebentz, group sales manager at Murketts Vauxhall, said: "We are excited to be hosting this celebratory birthday event. Network Q is one of the most thorough and reliable used car programmes ever developed and offers customers purchasing a used Vauxhall vehicle complete peace of mind.

"We hope to welcome many members of our local community into our showroom during the sale – it promises to offer a great party-like feel and we look forward to showcasing our range of Network Q vehicles, as well as reminding motorists of the advantages of buying a used Vauxhall within the Network Q programme."

Network Q customers at Murketts Vauxhall can enjoy a comprehensive package of benefits designed to take all the worry out of buying a quality used Vauxhall.

Thanks to the rigorous Network Q Multi-Point Check carried out by the retailer's team of highly-trained Vauxhall technicians, drivers can be confident that they are taking to the road with the same level of reassurance they'd get from buying a new Vauxhall.

The Multi-Point Check examines every major mechanical component and technicians will undertake all vital safety and security checks and perform a thorough test drive, as well as inspecting interior and exterior features.

Visit Murketts at 137 Histon Road, Cambridge, CB4 3JD, call (01223) 706706 or go to murketts.co.uk.

Suzuki's SX4 S-Cross is 5-star safety car

THE SX4 S-Cross has been rated one of Europe's safest cars, according to new independent crash testing results from Euro-NCAP, receiving the maximum 5-star rating.

Suzuki's new C-segment crossover has been highly rated among the 5-star vehicles tested by Euro-NCAP in 2013, achieving an above-average overall result. The SX4 S-Cross performed notably well on its pedestrian protection, the top-class rating in total score for newly adopted test methodology that took effect this year.

Euro-NCAP now releases one overall star rating with a maximum of five stars. The number of stars reflects how well a vehicle performs in all four areas: adult protection, child safety, pedestrian protection and safety assist.

The body structure and occupant restraint systems on the SX4 S-Cross are developed to meet current and anticipated crash safety standards, offering optimal protection in real life situations.

The new SX4 S-Cross features Suzuki's Total Effective Control Technology (TECT) concept for occupant-protecting impact absorption and low weight. Extensive use of high tensile steel for key parts helps to keep the body light and enhances the vehicle's crashworthiness substantially.

The new SX4 S-Cross's body incorporates a large proportion of high-tensile steel for strength and lightness. The stiff mountings of the front struts and suspension frame provide greater handling stability. A high-rigidity body is fundamental to handling, comfort, safety, NVH performance and every other aspect of a car's behaviour.

Suzuki ensures best possible safety on the new SX4 S-Cross by synchronising active and passive systems.

Active safety equipment includes a speed limiter, which prevents the car from exceeding a driver-set speed, ESP, which promotes stability; and seatbelt reminder for all seats.

Passive safety equipment on the SX4 S-Cross starts with seven airbags, which offer protection in the event of frontal, lateral or rear impact; seatbelt pre-tensioners and force limiters. The seat and head restraint provide good protection against whiplash injury in the event of a rear-end collision. In addition, bonnet shape and new structures for the cowl top, wipers and bumpers provide impact absorption which lessens the degree of harm if the car comes into contact with a pedestrian.

SX4 S-Cross is on sale now from £14,999.

STAR TURN: The Suzuki SX4 S-Cross has been awarded five stars in the Euro-NCAP safety tests

A cordless future for e-Volvos?

VOLVO has been a partner in an advanced research project that has studied the possibilities of inductive charging for electric vehicles – and the results show that this technology for transferring energy via an electromagnetic field has a promising future.

"Inductive charging has great potential. Cordless technology is a comfortable and effective way to conveniently transfer energy. The study also indicates that it is safe," says Lennart Stegland, vice president, Electric Propulsion System at Volvo Car Group.

Inductive charging uses an electromagnetic field instead of a cord to transfer energy between two objects.

VOLVO: No need for wires and plugs soon

An induction coil creates an alternating electromagnetic field from a charging base station. A second induction coil in the portable device picks up power from the electromagnetic field and converts it back into an electrical energy that charges the battery. This technology is common in electrical home appliances such as electrical toothbrushes but is not yet available to charge electric cars.

"With inductive charging, you simply position the car over a charging device and charging starts automatically. We believe that this is one of the factors that can increase the customer's acceptance of electrified vehicles," says Stegland.

The completed research project, which included inductive charging for cars and buses, was initiated by Flanders' Drive, the knowledge centre of the automotive industry in Belgium. It featured a consortium of companies including Volvo, who supplied the car for the project: a Volvo C30 Electric with a power output of 89 kW (120bhp).

"The tests demonstrated that our Volvo C30 Electric can be fully charged without a power cable in around 2.5 hours," concluded Stegland.

Rovers complete CRC league and cup wins

ANDREW Ofosu bagged a brace as Haverhill Rovers clinched a 2-1 triumph at CRC in the Thurlow Nunn League, Premier Division.

Ofosu prodded home a corner in the first half, but Jack Cook and Justin Leavers both wasted opportunities to level for the hosts.

Javan Scott did equalise for CRC 10 minutes from time with a shot from just inside the box only for Ofosu to net the winner on 86 minutes from another corner.

Rovers then made sure of their place in the second round of the Red Insure Cup on Tuesday with a similarly comfortable 2-0 win at home to the same opponents.

The hosts were in control early on in the first half and they took the lead in the 25th minute when Jack Wilkinson curled in a free kick from just over 20 yards.

Rovers continued to push for a second and it arrived 10 minutes later, Sam Holmes finishing off a good move.

They had more chances in the second half, but although they failed to take advantage, the hosts held on for victory.

Meanwhile, Haverhill Borough threw away a two-goal lead to lose 3-2 at home to Fakenham in the First Division.

Borough had the perfect start to the game when Aaron Forshaw skipped though the Fakenham defence to fire home in the third minute.

The lead was doubled 15 minutes later when Forshaw collected a long throw and again tormented the defence before squaring the ball to Callum Harrison, who turned and scored with a powerful shot.

Fakenham pulled a goal back on the half-hour when a cross from the right was headed powerfully past Liam Cutts by Robbie Harris.

However as the half ended, Ryan Geoghegan was unlucky not to connect with a Forshaw free kick while Luke Strutton had their best chance of the second half on the hour when his powerful goal-bound shot was blocked.

Fakenham looked increasingly dangerous at set pieces and corners and so it was to prove with two goals coming in the last eight minutes of the game.

Paffett has to settle for ninth in final DTM race of 2013

Gary Paffett finished a disappointing ninth in an eventful final race of the 2013 DTM season in Hockenheim.

He struggled for pace in the dry and the 32-year-old driver qualified in 16th place with lack of speed the main issue.

The wet weather on race day was more to Paffett's liking and his Euronics Mercedes AMG C-Coupe showed good pace early on.

A wrong choice of tyre pressure meant the Haverhill driver struggled for grip in the middle of the race and after 20 laps, his left-side door flew open, causing him problems aerodynamically.

Attempts to fix it during his second pit stop failed but he was able to creep into the top 10 where he finished ninth, to at least claim some points.

Timo Glock won the race in a BMW.

"It wasn't the best way to finish the season but it wasn't the worst," said Paffett.

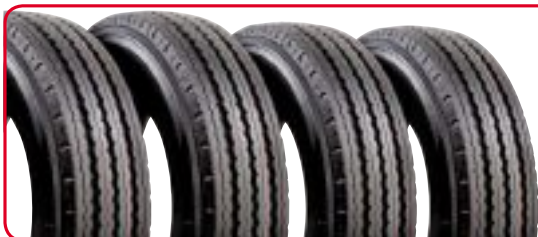

"I'm disappointed with how we qualified as the team worked so hard to find some speed in between races.

"I did enjoy the race when we were quick. I was able to catch up and make some passes.

"We'll work hard on trying to find the pace we need for next year and hopefully come back even stronger."
